Dear John,

I am taking the liberty of writing to you concerning [redacted] who retired from your organization in 1981. He needs assistance from your personnel office concerning his hearing disability compensation claim reinstatement. I would greatly appreciate it if you could have one of your senior personnel people look into this case. His problem is a Labor Department proposal that he drop his CIA retirement in favor of a Labor Department plan. Enclosed is a letter, dated 15 Jan 82, that I wrote substantiating [redacted] original hearing loss.

His wife, [redacted] also retired from your agency.

[redacted] can be reached during the day at telephone number [redacted]

I know you have many other things to worry about than a personnel problem and I appreciate whatever assistance you feel appropriate in [redacted] case.

Sincerely,
